Subject: Early childhood education — the path to lasting impact.

Most people remember that one person who made a positive impact on them as a child — a favorite teacher, fun babysitter or a favorite teacher in child care or elementary school. As an early childhood educator, you could be that person by helping young children learn and grow during their most important years.

Early childhood education offers many different career paths and education opportunities. Educators can pursue a Child Development Associate certificate, a Michigan Youth Development Associate certificate or an associate, bachelor's or master's degree. And potential roles include a preschool teacher, child care center director, team leader, etc.!

Plus, several scholarships are available for early childhood education students. The TEACH Early Childhood® Michigan Scholarship Program can help pay for education.
